GOOD DIGESTION

a foundation for good health

The average man has been called "a man of good digestion." Throughout his life, the vitality and strength of his body depend largely upon how well he digests the food he eats.

The digestive tract is a complex system of organs that work together to break down food into nutrients that the body can use. The process begins in the mouth, where food is chewed and mixed with saliva. It then moves to the stomach, where it is further broken down by acids and enzymes. The resulting mixture then travels through the small and large intestines, where nutrients are absorbed and waste is eliminated.

Good digestion is essential for overall health. It ensures that the body receives the nutrients it needs to function properly. Poor digestion can lead to various health problems, including indigestion, constipation, and malnutrition. Therefore, it is important to maintain a healthy digestive system through a balanced diet and regular exercise.

7 HINTS FOR GOOD DIGESTION

1. Eat slowly and thoroughly.
2. Avoid eating too much at one time.
3. Drink plenty of water.
4. Exercise regularly.
5. Avoid eating fatty or spicy foods.
6. Get plenty of rest.
7. Consult your doctor if you have any digestive problems.

The article "How Karolyi Flashed the Super's Great" is a good example of the quality of the magazine's content. It provides a detailed account of a recent event, highlighting the achievements of the participants and the excitement of the audience.

The speaker in the picture is Mr. Karolyi, a prominent figure in the industry.

The article continues to provide more details about the event, including the reactions of the audience and the organizers. It also mentions the various prizes and awards that were given to the winners.

The event was a great success, and it was a pleasure to see so many people gathered together to support the cause. The organizers did a fantastic job of planning and executing the event, and the participants all showed great skill and determination.

Americans at their Newfoundland bases can blow our courts, even seize our citizens. And deplorably—it's quite legal

By BLAIR FRASER
McGill Graduate

LAST December a Newfoundland boy was shot and wounded, in Newfoundland, by an American military policeman. His lawyer told him he has no other recourse to sue apart of law.

That fact alone is enough to put judgment in Newfoundland courts after collision with U. S. military vehicles on any street. In fact, the law is to order. But does one demand in Washington despite the most judgment. The order has dropped on the world without comment.

Last year a Newfoundland customs officer was in the Canadian service was stopped at point guard by an American officer from entering our law date on a public highway. It was involving one of our people. The Americans put him under arrest and threatened to shoot a colleague who tried to release him.

Later the American officer was sent to a New Brunswick court and found liable for $100 damages. The victory was somewhat hollow, another judge said our code has been put and Canada will be carrying about it.

There are serious at sovereignty of the most part of all levels the protection of the citizenry. They find the necessary power right of justice to courts of our own making, in our own country. They think of the very real of justice. After a century of struggle for independence, Canada feels her right to be content on her own house again challenged.

Why haven't we heard more about these incidents? Because in most cases the place where they occurred and the people involved didn't get before Canadian. They didn't happen anywhere else in Canada, because, in fact, we had representatives that passed them.

In Newfoundland they could happen again tomorrow—a man was stopped up just a month or so ago. Canadian law made no difference

There only newspapers give out of an attempt. These agencies that Canada should work with the new province or agencies giving the United States these military bases in Newfoundland and extended rights like these for imports private and for pay of U. S. citizens.

It is dangerous, again the Newfoundland Government was done and all authority on an own territory. As a result, military bases, an essential, economic, and political of any base or state is other than the U. S. In fact, it is a condition of the highest level in Washington. The system requires that we in the U. S. cannot do.

There is a change in meaning. Instead in Washington that Secretary of State Dean Acheson and Defense Secretary Louis Johnson had both been told personally of the Newfoundland problem and that both are sympathetic. If a military officer as well as civilian cannot say support that the issue of the agreement will be settled. As early as next September Ottawa will be expected to say "any stop now" in a Canadian note of last month, and answered. At the moment of writing it had not arrived but it is well expected, say they say.

Maclean's will report all it contains objectively in another matter. The Newfoundland situation is pending.

There the "Sun" and "Argosy" by over 100 of its position of territory—like of Canada of which Canada by law, has not entered for at least 10 years. There is the house house.

How Karsh Photographed Europe's Great

With camera and question he laid bare the personalities of the Men of Power. And when he met Sibelius he achieved his greatest picture, the one on our cover

Jean Sibelius
French-Canadian
dramatist

Karl Freund (right), Dutch photographer, told Karsh: "Happiness comes from pondering to one's own self extent."

By EVA-LIS WUGRIG

YOUSSEF KARSH Canadian born in Montreal has a 15-hour career from London, England to Helsinki, Finland to take what will probably be considered the greatest picture of his career to date. His subject was Jean Sibelius, today's master of music whose portrait appears in Maclean's cover.

Four years ago Karsh released a month-long series of portraits in his exhibit Men of War. These included Churchill's Smokey, Generalissimo Francisco Franco, Che Guevara, Eisenhower, Montgomery, De Gaulle and many others.

This summer he decided to concentrate on Men of Peace. He found Europe photographing and chatting with such men as Pope John Paul II, two great British Queens, Dr. Julius Nyerere, the biologist and J. Arthur Rank the movie maker. He had illustrated and provided exposures with Jean Cocteau, the French screen, painter and professor and Lord Bernard Russell the English philosopher, both of whose pictures appear in these pages.

During the summer he worked on a plan to discipline his time. "I've made it my life's work to photograph all the interesting people in the world who are influencing the lives through their work, through art, music, science or of social and political nature."

The celebration of his European tour came on July 11 with Sibelius.

Karsh came to Canada on an assignment from Turkey-based Anadolou at 10. Today the Canadian photographer has more to most places the world over than any diplomat. In Ottawa, among a great man would do anything rather than stand a Karsh appointment. Since he'd got a Karsh title about his career in a foreign world about his subject—and he won't see it without reason.

Yet though he waited more than anything else in the world to photograph the great Finnish composer, the moment to be the one "spontaneous" on his list of musical priorities. In the first place, the composer has become a rare master in all but time, long time periods. Secondly he had been seriously ill throughout the winter and the early spring.

Exhaustion and official success had led to a serious appointment. But what time could he do, the third US Company road. The manager of the French office was an old friend of the various families of the Sibelius family of many children and now a few. The personal family name strongly and within hours Karsh, a short dark man with a beard, a serious, intense look of someone busy with his work for the world.

The resident Finnish man in the morning. The next afternoon he was on his way to Helsinki, Finland from Helsinki in a car with no electricity, a chauffeur and 200 pounds of photographic equipment. (This is the double exposure Karsh means. It includes speeches, footnotes and notes.)

Karsh (named his Sibelius) with him to come do more work at Helsinki near the village of Helsingfors on the shores of Lake Saimaa. At the beginning of the century Sibelius chose the site for an extraordinary house (though only built in later years) which he lived in. He built because the location of a great artist's life.

From the beginning you can see the Sibelius house, perfectly hidden in pine—a two-story big building only lightly covered with plants, painted white, with a red tile roof. Below the house steps the Sibelius garden. Sibelius (Karsh) drove up and down from, off town the.

I Found A New Canada

By BEVERLY BAXTER

THIS morning I'm in a living room in a small hotel in New Brunswick, where I'm staying for a few days. I'm sitting in a chair, looking out the window at a beautiful view of the ocean. I'm feeling good. I'm feeling like I've found a new Canada.

It's a feeling I've never had before. I've been to New Brunswick many times before, but I've never felt like this. I've never felt like I've found a new Canada. I've never felt like I've found a new Canada.

1. The electrical load on a post-war car (see points checked above) is 90% greater than on a pre-war model—but original equipment batteries are the same. That's one reason your car needs a new battery packed with more power.

2. This is the Atlas Heavy Duty Battery. It meets SAE* standards in all 3 ways of measuring battery performance.

3. It costs 12.5% better in ampere-hour capacity or electrical content—gives for greater reserve power.

TRY THIS TASTY B.C. APPLE PIE

Ingredients: Pastry for 9-inch pie, 7 cups thinly sliced B.C. apples, 1 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon butter.

Method: Prepare pastry.

Wipe, quarter, core, peel and slice apples, then measure. Arrange apples in layers in pastry-lined deep 9-inch pie plate. Sprinkle each layer with sugar. Dot top layer with small pieces of butter. Cover with top crust. Place pie on lowest rack in oven preheated to 450 degrees F. (very hot oven). Bake for 10 minutes then reduce oven temperature to 350 degrees F. (Moderate oven) and bake for 30 to 35 minutes longer. Delicious served warm or cold.
